

{¶ 4} It is alleged in the complaint that each plaintiff purchased a Holiday Wishes lottery ticket in 2001 and that in Game 3 on each of those tickets two “like prizes” were matched. Plaintiffs allege that, according to the rules printed on the front of the ticket, a match of two like prizes in Game 3 entitles them to a prize and that defendant breached its contract by refusing to honor the tickets. Defendant contends that the front of the tickets contains a misprint and that plaintiffs are not entitled to the prize under the rules of the game. Plaintiffs counter that defendant should be made to pay the prize because the misprint was the result of defendant’s own negligence.

{¶ 5} Sales and purchase of lottery tickets are governed by general principles of contract law. Peters v. Ohio Lottery Commission (1992), 63 Ohio St.3d 296, 299. Lottery tickets such as those purchased and redeemed by plaintiffs herein, contain express terms requiring compliance with the rules and regulations of the commission, and lottery players are deemed to agree to abide by the terms of the game. See Woodbridge Partners Group, Inc. v. Lottery Com. (1994), 99 Ohio App.3d 269; Board v. Ohio Lottery Comm. (Dec. 14, 1999), Franklin App. No. 99AP-208; Rice v. Ohio Lottery Comm. (1999), 96 Ohio Misc.2d 25.

{¶ 6} Persons who play the Ohio Lottery are on notice that the rules that govern these games are outlined in the Ohio Administrative Code. Woodbridge supra at 272-73. The relevant lottery commission regulations are found at Ohio Adm.Code Section 3770:1-9-193(B)(1)(c) which provides, in pertinent part:

{¶ 7} “‘Game 3’ – the player reveals six prize values or five prize values and a ‘Bell’ symbol. The player must match three like prize values to win that prize amount. If the player matches two like prize values and a ‘Bell’ symbol is revealed, the player wins double that prize amount.” (Emphasis added.)

{¶ 8} In support of the motion for summary judgment, defendant submitted a letter sent to plaintiffs by defendant’s then chief legal counsel, Kathleen G. Weiss,¹ wherein Weiss speaks to the problem with the tickets purchased by plaintiffs, as follows:

¹The letter is attached as an exhibit to the affidavit of defendant’s current chief legal counsel, Quan T. Kirk.

{¶ 9} “ In game three, players were required under the play instructions to match three like prize amounts and win that prize or to match two like prize amounts plus a ‘Bell’ symbol to win double that prize. These instructions are clearly stated on the front and back of each ticket. Unfortunately, in game three on the front of the two tickets submitted by your clients, a ‘plug’ partially covers the ‘3’ where the player is required to match three like prize amounts.

{¶ 10} “

{¶ 11} “Pursuant to the game rule, the Director has declared ‘void’ any misprinted tickets in the Holiday Wishes instant game. His authority to do so can be found at OAC §3770:1-9-193(I)(2).  The Director’s declaration that any misprinted tickets in the Holiday Wishes game are void includes the two tickets submitted for consideration by [plaintiffs].

{¶ 12} “[Plaintiffs] are entitled to a refund of the purchase price for the ticket, or they are entitled to another instant lottery ticket of comparable price. ***”

{¶ 13} Plaintiffs concede that the front of each ticket contains a misprint. Nevertheless, plaintiffs argue that the misprint on the ticket creates an ambiguity and that the ambiguity should be resolved in their favor, since the tickets were printed by defendant. The court disagrees.

{¶ 14} If language in a contract is clear and unambiguous, “[a] court cannot in effect create a new contract by finding an intent not expressed in the clear language employed by the parties.” Alexander v. Buckeye Pipe Line Co. (1978), 53 Ohio St.2d 241, 246. If no ambiguity exists, the terms of the contract must simply be applied without resorting to methods of construction and interpretation. Id. The Supreme Court of Ohio has held that “[i]f a contract is clear and unambiguous, then its interpretation is a matter of law and there is no issue of fact to be determined.” Inland Refuse Transfer Co. v. Browning-Ferris Industries of Ohio, Inc. (1984), 15 Ohio St.3d 321, 322. Additionally, contracts must be read as a whole and interpreted so as to give effect to every provision. Farmers’ National Bank v. Delaware Ins. Co. (1911), 83 Ohio St. 309, 337. The mere fact that parties to a contract adopt conflicting interpretations of the document does not create ambiguity or a basis for interpretation of the contract language where no ambiguity can reasonably be said to exist in the language. Complete General Construction Company v. Koker Drilling Co., Franklin App. No. 02AP-63, 2002-Ohio-4778. The question of whether ambiguity or uncertainty in the language of a contract requires resort to extrinsic evidence to ascertain the intent of the parties is a question of law for the court. Latina v. Woodpath Dev. Co. (1991), 57 Ohio St.3d 212, 214 (“if a contract is clear and unambiguous, then its interpretation is a matter of law and there is no issue of fact to be determined”); Davis v. Loopco Industries, Inc., 66 Ohio St.3d 64, 66, 1993-Ohio-195; P & O Containers, Ltd. v. Jamelco, Inc. (1994), 94 Ohio App.3d 726, 731 (“the interpretation of a written contract is a question of law, absent patent ambiguity”).

{¶ 15} Ohio Adm.Code 3770:1-9-193 speaks directly to the issue of misprinted tickets as follows:

{¶ 16} “(I) Validity of tickets.

{¶ 17} “(1) A mechanical error in printing prize awards, symbols, words or other numbers on a ticket shall not automatically invalidate that ticket. To the extent feasible, the director shall establish procedures by which the holder of any ticket on which information is incorrectly printed due to mechanical malfunction may be advised of correct information for the ticket. If it is not technically feasible to recover the information from a mechanically misprinted ticket, the director may declare the ticket void and the holder shall be entitled to a return of the ticket price or a replacement ticket of comparable price.

{¶ 18} “(2) In addition to, but not in limitation of, all other power and authority conferred on the director by the commission’s rules, the director may declare a ticket in game number one hundred ninety-three void if it is stolen, unissued, deactivated, not sold or deemed not sold in accordance with commission rules; if it is illegible, mutilated, altered, counterfeit, misregistered, reconstituted, miscut, defective, printed or produced in error or incomplete; or if the ticket fails any of the validation tests or procedures established by the director. The commission’s liability and responsibility for a ticket declared void, if any, is limited to refund of the retail sales price of the ticket or issuance of a replacement ticket of comparable price. ***”

{¶ 19} The court finds, as a matter of law, that the express terms set forth above clearly and unambiguously provide that the player must either match three like values in order to win, or match two like values and a “bell symbol” to win double that amount. Additionally, the regulations clearly and unambiguously grant defendant’s director the discretion to void misprinted or illegible tickets such as those purchased by plaintiffs. Despite plaintiffs’ protestations to the contrary, the contract at issue is not reasonably susceptible to another interpretation.
