9 1996.)

10 Appeal from the Board of Tax Appeals, No. 93-M-590.

11 For tax year 1992, the Darke County Auditor valued the five parcels 12 of real property owned by appellant, Tanson Holdings, Inc. ("Tanson"), at a 13 true value of $107,230 for land and $372,170 for buildings, for a total true
14 value of $479,400. Tanson filed a complaint with the Darke County Board
15 of Revision ("BOR"), alleging that the true value should be zero for the land 16 and $200,000 for the buildings. No witnesses or evidence was presented by 17 Tanson at the hearing before the BOR. The BOR affirmed the auditor's 18 assessment and Tanson appealed to the Board of Tax Appeals ("BTA").

1           The real property in question consists of approximately nineteen acres
2 located in Ansonia, Ohio, which was originally owned by the Lambert
3 Corporation. In August 1988, all the stock of Lambert Corporation was 4 sold by the Lambert family to TMW, Inc., a corporation solely owned by 5 Thomas M. Willoughby. At the time of the stock purchase extensive
6 warranties for environmental matters were given by the sellers to TMW, 7 Inc.

8           In January 1989, three underground storage tanks were found on the 9 Lambert Corporation property. Subsequent testing of the ground around the 10 tanks apparently disclosed that extensive contamination had occurred prior 11 to the purchase of Lambert Corporation by TMW, Inc. Willoughby testified 12 that from January 1989 until February 1992 the expenses for “legal fees, and 13 interest and everything,” including consultant fees, eventually approached 14 $300,000. Of this amount, Willoughby estimated that about $175,000 had 15 been hard costs for the cleanup.

16           A portion of the original purchase price of approximately $2,600,000
17 paid by TMW, Inc. for the Lambert Corporation stock was financed by 18 Society Bank. When Society Bank learned of the environmental problems,

1 it allowed TMW, Inc. to transfer the real estate and approximately $950,000
2 of debt to Tanson Holdings, Inc. (“Tanson”), a new corporation created
3 solely to own the real property of TMW, Inc. Willoughby was also the sole 4 shareholder of Tanson. Thereafter, in September 1990, title to the real 5 property was transferred from Lambert Corporation to Tanson. The 6 conveyance fee statement for the transfer from Lambert Corporation to 7 Tanson indicated a price of $950,000. Willoughby stated that the price was 8 set at $950,000 because that was the amount of the existing debt transferred 9 with the property. At a later time, Society Bank sold its mortgage for 10 $30,000 to Ohio Lawn & Garden, Inc., a corporation owned by a limited
11 partnership which had Willoughby as its general partner.

12 On October 21, 1993, Tanson transferred the real property by 13 quitclaim deed to Knowlton Realty Company (“Knowlton”) for the sum of 14 $25,000, which was paid to Ohio Lawn & Garden, Inc. Knowlton is 15 apparently owned by Steven Lambert, the son of William Lambert.
16 Knowlton took the property subject to a mortgage held by William B.
17 Lambert, the father of Steven Lambert.

1           Following litigation, brought by Willoughby, William Lambert paid
2   $50,000 towards the cleanup costs of the property. The agreement of sale
3   between Tanson and Knowlton provided that Knowlton and Steven Lambert
4   would indemnify and hold Tanson and Willoughby harmless for any future 5   costs or liability with respect to any environmental issue connected with the 6   operations of Lambert Corporation to approximately mid-1986.

7           At the hearing before the BTA, Willoughby presented a copy of a 8   report from a consultant, which estimated possible cleanup costs at just 9   under $1,000,000. However, Willoughby admitted that, as regards the 10   cleanup of the property, there never had been any citations or enforcement 11   actions by the EPA involving this property.

12           Thomas J. Johnson, an appraiser with the Cole, Layer, Trumble
13   Company, testified on behalf of the auditor's office. Johnson's involvement
14   with the real property began when Tanson filed a complaint with the BOR
15   in 1990, alleging contamination problems. As a result of a hearing for a 16   prior year before the BOR, it had reduced the valuation for 1990 and 1991
17   to account for cleanup costs expended by Tanson. Johnson, who had 18   personally viewed the property and reviewed the situation, did not offer an

1 opinion of value, but stated that his company's prior appraisal of $480,000
2 appeared to be a fair and equitable value.

3 The BTA affirmed the BOR. Tanson filed a notice of appeal with this 4 court.

5 This cause is now before this court upon an appeal as of right.

7 Jonathan P. Hein, Darke County Prosecuting Attorney, and Richard
8 M. Howell, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, for appellee.

9 Per Curiam. Appellant contends that the BTA erred because there 10 was no reliable or probative evidence to support the BTA's determination 11 that the sale from Tanson to Knowlton was not an arm's-length sale. In 12 Walters v. Knox Cty. Bd. of Revision (1989), 47 Ohio St.3d 23, 546 N.E.2d 13 932, we defined the elements of an arm's-length sale, stating that "it is 14 voluntary, i.e., without compulsion or duress; it generally takes place in an 15 open market; and the parties act in their own self-interest." After reviewing 16 the evidence in this case, the BTA found that the relationship between the 17 grantor and the grantee "is far from independent." The BTA further stated,

1 “[T]his Board does not find that a transfer between appellant and the son of 2 the prior owner exhibits the indices of a market sale.”

4 Products, Inc. v. Bowers (1960), 171 Ohio St. 176, 12 O.O.2d 292, 168
5 N.E.2d 404. The BTA is vested with wide discretion in determining the 6 weight to be given to the evidence and the credibility of the witnesses which 7 come before it. Cardinal Fed. S. & L. Assn. v. Cuyahoga Cty. Bd. of 8 Revision (1975), 44 Ohio St.2d 13, 73 O.O.2d 83, 336 N.E.2d 433. In this 9 case, Tanson had the duty to prove its right to a reduction in value. R.R.Z.
10 Assoc. v. Cuyahoga Cty. Bd. of Revision (1988), 38 Ohio St.3d 198, 527
11 N.E.2d 874. One of the facts which Tanson had to prove was that the sale
12 was an arm’s-length sale. In Conalco, Inc. v. Monroe Cty. Bd. of Revision
13 (1977), 50 Ohio St.2d 129, 4 O.O.3d 309, 363 N.E.2d 722, we held in 14 paragraph one of the syllabus: “The best evidence of the ‘true value in 15 money’ of real property is an actual, recent sale of the property in an arm’s-
16 length transaction.” However, the evidence presented to the BTA raised 17 questions about whether the sale was an arm’s-length sale between 18 independent parties. Willoughby testified that, when he purchased the stock

1 from the Lambert family, extensive warranties had been given by the sellers.
2 Willoughby further testified that there had been litigation with William B.
3 Lambert, the father of Steven Lambert. Steven Lambert had been one of the 4 managers of the property at the time the environmental problems had been 5 generated. When asked if Knowlton was owned by Steven Lambert,
6 Willoughby replied, "I guess."

7 Based on the meager evidence presented to the BTA, competing
8 inferences could be drawn as to whether the relationship between the buyer
9 and the seller qualified the sale as an arm's-length transaction. The burden
10 was on Tanson to convince the BTA that the sale was an arm's-length 11 transaction, and it was unable to meet that burden.

12 In this case, the BTA as the trier of fact drew the inference that the 13 relationship between the buyer and the seller was "far from independent." 14 Whether such an inference drawn from the facts is reasonable is an 15 appropriate question for our review. Ace Steel Baling, Inc. v. Porterfield
16 (1969), 19 Ohio St.2d 137, 48 O.O.2d 169, 249 N.E.2d 892. We have 17 reviewed the record and we find the BTA's inference to be reasonable.
